Migration Experts Join Forces

As tough new immigration laws start on July 1, aml | australian migration lawyers has joined forces with two leading migration experts, each of whom had previously operated their own successful businesses.

Their appointment at aml gives the firm an outstanding level of expertise and professionalism, which provides incoming immigrants the best chance migrating to Australia.

Letitia de Lima, formerly of Visas r Us, and Peter Lee of Australian Visa Lawyers both have strong backgrounds in migration and a history of success in helping people migrate to Australia.

"With the constantly changing immigration regulations, it is essential that intending migrants talk to someone who can give them up-to-date advice that is specific to their situation," said Mr Lee. "Unfortunately, too many people try to navigate this minefield of regulations on their own, and are unsuccessful as a result."

This is no surprise considering that Australia has over 150 different visa types and waiting lists of over four years on certain visas.

As a result, aml has recently appointed Peter and Letitia who ensure that their clients are kept fully informed as their case proceeds.

Peter Lee has specialist expertise in migration that has stemmed from more than 24 years as a professional Immigration Officer in the Department of Immigration and Citizenship (DIAC).

He has had six overseas postings with the department, completing service in Malaysia, Sri Lanka, China and the USA and served as the head of the Immigration Section in his last five postings with DIAC.

In addition to his migration experience, Peter has also been lecturing in migration law at the Australian National University and Griffith University.

Peter's background makes him a key figure in msl | michael sing lawyers Asian Business Services department.

Letitia de Lima is also a registered migration agent and has more than 20 years of commercial experience gained in both the public and private sectors.

Letitia is in a good position to advise business migrants and maintains an impressive list of Australian industry, commercial, professional and Government contacts and connections she has established over 10 years.

Fluent in Afrikaans, and as a migrant herself, she is a South African migration specialist. Her dynamic personality and "can do" attitude makes her a first choice professional for many South Africans.

This highly skilled team supports aml's professional and ethical approach to their services, which comes from having the backing of a full-service law firm, msl | michael sing lawyers.

"When it comes to important, life-changing matters such as getting the right visa, or helping your family stay in Australia, it is important to seek the best advice early," said Letitia de Lima.

aml has successfully helped people of all ages and backgrounds to migrate to Australia and is skilled and knowledgeable in every aspects of migration.

aml's longstanding relationships with reputable companies and businesses, including relocation experts, banks, foreign exchange dealers, accountants, real estate and business brokers, make them the first choice to assist you through the entire migration process.
